The first rehearsal for the grand chorns of votces from the public schools of Washington on the occasion of the national encampment was held yesterday afternoon in the large hall of the Chorus. Hurrah! hurrah, for eighteen ninety-t E. D. Tracy arrived at the school he found a number of children waiting for him. It was supposed that the East Washington High School was provided with a piano, and for that reason it was chosen for the first rehearsal, but its absence was not noticed, for the pupils, every one of them, were familiar with the first song, "America," and sang it so well that Mr.
Tracy had nothing but praise for them.
They did equally well with the next song, "Fattle Hymn of the Eepublic," which they sang to the tune of "John Lies a Meldering in the Grave." "John Brown's Body

About seventy-five children signed the roll. Com-Director Tracy stated that he was going to when introduce a novelty in arranging the chorus. The children would all be dressed so that when Little pamphlets containing the songs to be sung were then distributed. The songs selected

WHERE LEADERS ASSEMBLE. Campaign Gossip Picked Up at Political Headquarters in New York.

New York, August 31, 1892. Washington faces have been as thick in New York today as blackberries. Indeed, it might be said that they are thicker than blackberries, for the blackberry season in New York has pretty well passed. Editor Lemon of the Naional Tribune, who holds the purse strings of the Grand Army reunion fund, was in the city and was among the callers at the republican republican headquarters talking with Gen. Clarkson about the situation in Virginia. Charley Hamilton came into town in the morning and registered at the Fifth Avenue along with all the other nobs. Assistant Register of the Treasury Harry Smith spent a part of the day in the city, calling at the repub-lican headquarters to pay his respects to Gen, Clarkson, Chairman Carter and Secretary Mc-Clarkson, Chairman Carter and Secretary Mc-Comas. He was cordially welcomed by the corps of Washingtonians there. He is on his way to Boston, where he is going to make a study of the question of state banks. A resolu-tion was passed by the Senate shortly before its adjournment calling for information about taxes collected from state banks, amount of cir-culating notes issued by state banks since 1830 to New York city in pursuit of this information. Congressman Abuer Taylor also put in an appearance at the republican headquarters and talked interestingly about the situation in his state—Illinois. Capt. Edward Wright Brady was also in town and made a call at the republican headquarters. Senator Gorman was at the democratic headquarters again and so was

They have remained at their plowshares until to be expended under the direction of the road.

What a change now! These same farmers ar to be seen at every political gathering applaud-ing or hissing, according to the utterances of the speakers; their faces flushed with excitement and their breasts beating convulsively with emotion. What has wrought this wonder-ful change? Nothing less than a political revoful change? Nothing less than a political revo-lution is in progress. The democratic managers are finding the third party leaders foemen worthy of their steel. This party, which was scarcely heard of twelve months ago, has become an important factor in Virginia politics and is playing havor with the democratic party.

Many hitherto democratic farmers who revolted at the very mention of "negro control," as it is called, now scoff at the idea and say that they no longer dread that "bugaboo."

The "force bill" has lost all of its horrors to them, while many believe that Weaver will be elected.

Curtus Delbohn, a farmer, was preparing to deepen his well by blasting and excavating, and with that intention in view he and his son descended to the bottom by means of a ladder. They were both overcome by foul air. The father was removed by means of a rope, the son remaining. The wife and mother then came to the rescue, descended into the well, but she too was overcome. Sev-eral men were then induced to go down. They

In the right direction by letting Duryea go. Comiskey will sign him at once, and some may criticise the management for letting a pitcher go who is wanted by another club. Duryea may go who is wanted by another club. Duryca may be a good one, but he has not been of any value to the Washingtons. Either he wouldn't or couldn't pitch winning ball. Of course the only thing to do is to let him go and get some one else. The new management does not intend to be se lax in its discipline as has been the case. Abbey will probably be the next to go. He has demonstrated his worthlessness to the Washington team. Three good pitchers will be obtained and will be regularly worked. The nine has been greatly weakened by the absence of Milligan and Larkin. This will be no longer tolgan and Larkin. This will be no longer tol-erated. They will have to play ball if they are able. If not their resignations will be accepted regretfully. The reorganization of the team will ultimately put Richardson back on second, Radford in the field, and a new short and third baseman will be secured.

First, however, the box will be strengthened It is ridiculously weak as compared with what it was last April, when the ball season opened. Mr. Wagner thinks that the team as a whole is it.
